

DESIGN-BUILD BEST PRACTICES

Tuesday, May 19, 2015

BREAKFAST

7:30am-9:30am at Millennium Biltmore Hotel, LA

SPEAKERS

- Rebekah Gladson, President, rgggroup global
- Barbara Wagner, Sr. Vice President, Clark Construction
- Greg Gidez, DBIA AIA, Director of Design Services, Hensel Phelps
- Robert Green, Project Executive, Rosendin Electric, Inc.

PRESENTATION OVERVIEW

- Nationally, Design-Build is growing as a project delivery method. To many, Design Build is the preferred method of project delivery for its ability to deliver innovative projects faster, at less cost, at higher quality, and with less litigation.
- Research suggests design build is more cost effective, faster to market, and provides better value to owners. With the maturing of integrated technologies of virtual design and construction (VDC), collaborative relationships such as design build will continue to grow as Owners look for better value in their projects.
- Design-Build may be an unfamiliar project delivery method for many owners, builders and designers. Misconceptions on the process including contracting considerations and project execution make some practitioners wary about engaging in a Design Build project. The presentation seeks to debunk myths about Design Build and inform the owner and practitioners on Design Build Best Practices. The presentation will discuss techniques, methods, and processes that if applied will be more effective at delivering a successful outcome for the team.

Learning Objectives

- Best practices for Design Build projects
- Awareness of business considerations for pursuing work and executing in a design build environment
- Avoiding the traps of "Design Build Done Wrong"
- Assembling and managing the right design build team
